Information Systems Resources Announces Director of Business Development

Executive to Develop Opportunities for IT Firm

DETROIT, Mich. Nov. 17, 2011 – Information Systems Resources (ISR), a leading provider of services and products designed to build and manage computer network infrastructures, today announced that IT industry veteran Fred Lumpkin has joined the company as Director of Business Development.

Mr. Lumpkin comes from the Iron Mountain Digital Group where he served as a consultant to Solution Sales and worked with offsite disaster recovery and Cloud storage services. Prior to Iron Mountain, Lumpkin worked at Automatic Data Processing, Inc. (ADP), where he was responsible for the sales of professional employer organization Human Resource outsourcing solutions. He has also served in a leadership capacity at Compuware Corporation, Computer Associates, Cranston Digital Design and other organizations.

“We are pleased to welcome Fred to our leadership team at ISR,” said ISR founder and CEO Luther Elliot. “Fred possesses the skills and market expertise to help us continue to grow our business and serve more corporate clients with our robust and comprehensive IT solutions.”

ISR is an award winning minority-owned Information Technology company based in Dearborn. It specializes in providing complete cradle-to-grave IT asset management services including front-end procurement, warehousing, equipment staging, software image management, asset tagging, just-in-time delivery and installation and remarketing and recycling of assets.

“I’m delighted to join the capable professionals at ISR and impressed with the caliber and commitment of my new colleagues on the team,” said Lumpkin. “I am eager to build on the continued growth of the firm as we expand into new markets and win new clients with our valuable information technology services.”
